Denver, Colorado

March 1, 2006,

Today at Jefferson County Airport in Broomfield, Journeys Aviation, Inc. the airport's newest flying club, acquired the oldest flight school on the field, Air West Flying Club.

Journeys Aviation™ was founded three years ago, and its mission from its inception has been to offer purely professional flight instruction, unparalleled customer service, and a wide variety of exceptional rental aircraft. "Our success", says Chief Flight Instructor Alan Fernandez, "stems from the fact that we are a club—we all work together to make Journeys a safe and fun place to fly." For over thirty years, Air West has had a similar goal. Jack Stell, Journeys'™ general manager said "Former Air West members can expect a smooth transition to Journeys Aviation™ where we are highly focused on serving our newest customers and this move."

As a result of this acquisition, Journeys Aviation™, which opened for business exactly three years ago this date, is now the largest flight training school at Jeffco Airport. The firm now has a fleet of 24 aircraft and a staff of 34 federally certified flight instructors. Journeys Aviation™ serves both student pilots experiencing the journey of learning to fly as well as experienced pilots that need access to planes for their travels. They also offer mountain aviation training and sightseeing flights, and Journeys regularly hosts pilots from outside the United States.
